Bob.

Washington Letter in Charleston, (S. C.) Times

Of course you know that Bob Ingersoll is here, mostly at the White House, with a retinue of office-seekers. He walks about like a sort of matre d'hoté in the conscious innocence of power. If Herod was President, he would recognize in Bob one of the "holy innocents" that had got left, and wipe him out. If he is an Infidel, and does not believe in God, it is quite sure that he believes in man, and that he takes some stock in women too. That sort of infidelity pays handsomely, especially on Sunday evenings.

THE STATE FAIR.

There seems to still be a doubt whether our business men take enough interest in a State Fair to make one possible in 1881. We believe this to be all wrong. The Trustees have wisely concluded not to hold a fair unless they can attract the people, and this cannot be done with an empty purse. The committee is met with the old answer, "Oh, the Fair is of no interest to us." We would like to ask these business men a few questions. Is it not true that you find it necessary to lay in a large stock on the approach of fair week? How do your sales that week compare with others during the year? Do you pretend to say, as business men, that it makes no difference whether $80,000 or $100,000 is spent here among you each year? You men who did so much to get the Asylum, ask yourself which does Reno the most good, one fair or six asylums. A fair is not unconstitutional gentlemen at any rate and when by neglect you have allowed some other town to appropriate the result of your work, then you will see what has been lost. Reno men have made a yearly fair, an institution of the State which people will always patronize if it be made attractive. If you refuse to act now, don't blame anybody but yourselves for what will be an irreparable loss to the town. As to the effect which the fair has on property and business in Washoe there is no need to speak. It can be seen as plainly as Mount Rose.

Those men who have responded to the call can say that they have as usual shown a worthy spirit of enterprise and good citizenship. Those who desire the benefit without the outlay should not forget that when the loss comes they directly caused it. If business men will look ahead their path is plain. If they are blind they will undoubtedly fall.

The Treasury Department Thursday purchased 400,000 ounces of fine silver for delivery at the San Francisco and Philadelphia Mints. This does not look much like the Carson Mint was to be closed.

The Silver State thinks John W. Mackay might desire to be Governor of Nevada. There is probably no truth in the rumor. He could have it for asking.

R. C. Crowley, of Chicago, succeeds James Gamble as Superintendent of the Pacific Division W. U. Tel. Co.

The Evening Standard-News of Bodie will be revived on Monday next. Are you there, Mister Hoole?

The Sea Serpent Discovered—Petrified.

Springfield Republican.

The proprietors of the Champlain granite works, located near Barn Rock bay on Lake Champlain, claim to have discovered a petrified sea serpent of mammoth proportions, being about 8 inches in diameter and nearly 50 feet long. The surface of this stone bears evidence of the outer skin of a large serpent, while the inner surface shows the entrails. The proprietors, whose headquarters are at Vergennes, are intending soon to begin excavations along the place where it lies embedded in the dirt and granite to ascertain its size. Holes dug at distances for 60 feet indicate that it is lying in a serpentine form, as though it had, under some great upheaval of the earth worked its way through the rocks in a winding course until bound fast. It is over 100 feet above the level of Lake Champlain in the side of a mountain of the Adirondack range.

The Mine Market.

Special to the GAZETTE.

NEW YORK, June 4.

The creation of the two mining exchanges has served the very valuable purpose of exhibiting to the public at large the magnitude of deception contemplated by promoters of a class of mining enterprises, which offer 8 per cent. market value and 92 per cent. water.

Already the organization of wild-cat companies is on the decline, and, in fact, has almost ceased. Individuals of means, possessed of knowledge of mining properties, and knowing how to work them intelligently and with economy, are beginning to do work that has hitherto been undertaken by companies, and generally with satisfactory results. This mining on private account is destined to extend rapidly, and its result will be to put the business on a more solid and reputable basis, and to draw it into a much larger amount of capital.

BOYCOTTING.

How to Separate Public-Spirited and Bashful Citizens.

The soliciting committee to raise funds for the State Fair has not met with that success which their zeal deserves. The case stands in this way: Men who have always been ready to respond, have subscribed, most of them, according to their means. There are others, who are equally interested, who have subscribed nothing, or mere trifles. The Trustees will not undertake to give a Fair unless they can offer attractions which will draw a good attendance, and this cannot be done without money in hand. The Trustees and committee propose that if a Fair is made impossible by the neglect of these parties, they shall be known and made known every day during Fair week. This will be a practical illustration of "Boycott," and it seems to be in a worthy cause. Business men should read the editorial in to-day's GAZETTE, and give the matter careful attention.

JOTTINGS.

School election in Truckee to-day.

What are you going to do about the Fair?

Pioneer Picnic to-morrow. Tickets at the Postoffice.

Diphtheria is reported from Washoe valley.

James Brady closed his saloon on Plaza street to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harcourt, of Franktown, are in town to-day.

Granger—There are no grasshoppers at Pechner's Bath House.

Let's see. To-morrow will be Sunday, and as usual Pechner's Bath is ready for you.

Never put off till Monday when you can bathe on Sunday. Pechner's place is on Virginia street.

At the International Bath House anybody can be sure of good attention at any hour of the day or night.

The warmer the weather the more you ought to bathe at International, opposite the Nevada Theatre.

On June 1st, in Independence, Lake, four hundred and thirty nine trout were the result of one day's fishing.

Thirty of the white laborers on the Bodie Railroad, who struck Wednesday, resumed work at the old wages yesterday.

Clawson tells about paying $2,000 a month rent for a bar on a steamer. That's more than the editor's salary comes to.

Bashful Young Man—Certainly you have the right of abundant water and the use of bath towels at Pechner's Bath House.

The International is Reno's cheap hotel, is well fitted and well furnished and has a complete bathing establishment attached.

The Enterprise says that Tom Smith, who was with the fleeing Graham, was entirely innocent of any knowledge of the intended escape.

Every prudent Carson man is oiling his revolver and whetting his bowie knife to-day. To-morrow will be "stand and deliver day" with the habitues.

Many people have been inquiring for electric, steam and salt baths. These can all be had at the International, under the eye of a German physician.

About Goose Lake are yet thousands of acres of Government land, and the settlers are rejoicing in the expectation that the Reno, Nevada & Oregon Railroad will soon reach that point.

At Emigrant Gap lately, a log at the tunnel slipped, went through the side of Martin's house, and came near killing J. Moore and Geison, both of whom received injuries.

There are at present no boats running on Goose Lake; but a steamboat is contracted for, which will run regular trips on the lake, and be ready by the 4th of July for the first trip.

Pioneers' Picnic.

The first large picnic of the season will be given at Treadway's to-morrow by the Society of Pacific Coast Pioneers. The programme is an attractive one, as will be seen by reference to the advertisement on the second page, and comprises target shooting, races, and a variety of games, for which suitable prizes are offered. Tickets can be had at the Post Office or from Wm. Cain, Esq. The following purses have been added:

Trotting race—harness—three-minute class. Society purse of $100—gold coins ten per cent, entrance five to enter and three to start; $75 to first horse; $25 to second horse. Any horse distanced the field only receives first money. National Association rules to govern the race. All entries to be made with John Sweeny, Carson city, on or before June first.

Go-as-you-please race—horse or team closest to four minutes wins the purse, $10. Horses to go as owners choose; under saddle, or single or double harness; entrance $1.

Sad Loss.

Ernest McGgettigan, traveling agent for Moore, Hunt & Co., left Reno night before last for Truckee. After his departure a dispatch arrived informing him of the serious illness of his child. The dispatch was forwarded to him by his friend D. McFarland, of the Arcade, and he prepared to leave for home. As he was about to mount the train another dispatch informed him that the child was dead. This is the fifth child which has passed away from the stricken family in three years, and this loss is almost more than they can bear.

JOVIAL JACKSON.

His Lotharian way produces two flights and a prospective divorce suit.

Communicated.

Editor Gazette—I want some space in your paper to say something about myself, because I ought to protect my children. Eleven years ago I married William Jackson in Reno and have now four children by him, one having died. For some time he has been guilty of an evil intimacy with a woman whom I know, and this intimacy is reflecting on me and my children. I have long suspected that this business was going on, but never knew it until I found these letters in my husband's pocket:

RENO, July 16, 1879.

My Dearest Loving Friend:—I received your loving letter yesterday. I was so glad to hear from you and that you are quite well as I am at the present time I have often thought of you since you went away and wondered if you ever gave me a passing thought. Please excuse these few brief lines I cant write any more this time I will write along letter next time. My love to you and a kiss and when you come to Reno I will give you a natural kiss if you are a good boy and be your self right nice good by. Oh I wrote a letter yesterday for you to hear say. The alfa in this valley looks like a partial failure, as it is not as rank as last year in the same fields. Some of our ranchers are cutting the grass already, to try to save it from the hoppers. Our ranchers are looking and feeling very blue just at present. At Sierra ville, some business is being done in real estate. Mr. Lemmon sold his ranch. So also, did Mr. Garfield and Mrs. Alby. The stage line from Truckee to Sierraville has changed hands twice within the last month.

The people about Sierraville have not been devastated like the people elsewhere in this valley by the hoppers, and thus the sales of real estate, I presume, as no one could find a buyer for ranches here at Loyalton. M. D.

LOYALTON LOCALS.

The Grasshopper too numerous for its enemies, also for the ranchers.

(Correspondence.)

LOYALTON, Cal., June 9d, 1881.

Editor Gazette—Dear Sir. The ranchers are now, and have been for a week trying to drive back the approaching grasshoppers, by scaring them with a piece of cloth in the hand, by hauling straw and scattering it over them and burning it, to keep them from the large and fine-looking grain fields here at Loyalton, but there are acres and acres, and even miles of them in some locations, and it seems we are to have little left this year from the pesky nuisance.

They are coming from the north, and marching south and east. Only a few can fly as yet. There is a fly that stings them, digs a hole in the soft ground and drags the hoppers into it, but the flies are too few to affect the dense, black masses but little. I send you a sample of the fly, and you will see the peculiar foot and stingers, the same as is on the common honey bee. The crickets I failed to discover in my search for them to-day, and mentioned them before from hear say. The alfa in this valley looks like a partial failure, as it is not as rank as last year in the same fields. Some of our ranchers are cutting the grass already, to try to save it from the hoppers. Our ranchers are looking and feeling very blue just at present. At Sierra

I could not send it by mail so I sent it in the things that your wife sent and she saw it I told her I was going to send it to you with her permission and she seemed pleased. I would have answered your letter right away but I was not well enough to go to town and I could not send it by any other means as you know our correspondence must be kept a profound secret of Please mention the tie in your next letter to your wife because I wish it and then it would be better. I could not mention them things I was afraid she might guess sum thing. My love to you & a kiss. Your loving friend in haste. Write soon.

Claxton in Savannah. A Savannah paper thus tells its impression of Kate Claxton in the "Two Orphans":

We found Miss Claxton in every respect the accomplished and talented actress she has been represented, and her company is, undoubtedly taken in a whole, one of the best organized and finest that has accompanied any "star" of our city since the war. Miss Claxton's personation of the beautiful character of "Louise" evinced an earnestness and fidelity to nature that won the highest admiration of her audience. To not one of the varying and trying scenes through which she passes was she otherwise than faultless. In truth it required no stretch of the imagination to enable one to think that the "Louise" of the beautiful and pathetic story was present. In the acting the spectator lost sight of the actress.

Awful Inhumanity.

From the Laoon Home Journal.
A correspondent, a couple of weeks since, referred to a man getting caught in the treacherous sands of Crow Creek, where he remained twelve hours. He had worked through the winter for James and Scott Sowards, the former of whom settled with him the evening before and told him he was no longer wanted about. The man, who was not very bright mentally, started for a house half a mile away, where he had been shown some kindness, to pass the night. There was a usual route by the bridge, but a nearer path, often traveled, skirted the edge of a treacherous quicksand bog, which no brute or human could venture upon without risk. In the darkness he missed his footing and plunged in, and each effort to extract himself only sunk him the deeper. He was heavily and warmly dressed, to which fact is probably due the preservation of his life. The place is half a mile distant from any house, and his calls were unheard. There was an oak post adjacent, which he grasped and held to with the energy of despair. For twelve hours he remained engulfed in the ice-cold sand and water, and when discovered in the morning only his head remained above the surface. All consciousness was gone, but his fingers still grasped the post tightly, and had to be unclasped one by one. A man named Carmichael first found him, and went for help to his master, but met with a refusal. His time was too valuable to waste in saving the life of a fellow mortal, and his reply was blunt and brutal—"Let him get himself out, damn him! My time is too valuable." Next he went to his son and met a like refusal. It required several miles travel to find others, and it took six stout men to get him out. A carpet-bag strapped upon his shoulders, and entirely submerged, was filled with clothing, and some money was found in his pockets. He is now at the county house, but his sufferings have made him, it is feared, permanently insane.

Marriage of the Greatest Heiress in England.

Some of our readers may take interest in the scarcely less than imperial splendor of the wedding at Westminster Abbey on the last Saturday in April of the greatest heiress in England, Miss Maynard, to the heir of one of the most famous of English titles, the Earl of Warwick. Though the present Earl of Warwick is not a descendant of the great "king-maker," or of the "king-maker's" race of the Nevilles, now represented by the Marquis of Abergavenny—he is the owner of Warwick Castle, that noble type of the old feudal homes of England in which Americans take such delight that when it was damaged by fire a few years ago subscriptions were sent from this country to aid in restoring it. He is of the blood of Duke Greville, the friend of Sir Philip Sidney, and one of his ancestors, Sir Duke Greville, of the days of Henry VII and Henry VIII, set the Lord Brooke of our times the example of marrying the greatest heiress of England in those days, Elizabeth Wilmoughby. Lord Brooke was married with much pomp, Dean Stanley, of course, officiating, with sundry other divines; and Miss Maynard coming into the venerable abbey with a bevy of no fewer than twelve bridesmaids. She brings to her spouse a dower of many thousand acres, with a rent-roll of more than $100,000 a year, thereby doubling his prospective inheritance.

The Grand Duke Constantine.

London Globe.

An anecdote, which the indelatigable Schnitzler has rescued from oblivion, gives us a glimpse into the prince's early ambitions, and is of curious interest now that he has fallen so severely under his Imperial nephew's displeasure, and that all St. Petersburg is speculating on the extent of his simplicity with the mad schemes of his son. The Czarowith Alexander (the son) was bewailing in one of his melancholy mood the thorny path which he was destined to tread. "It is a terrible task to govern a great people," he muttered, half to himself.

But the sentiment caught the ear of the Grand Duke Constantine Nicholas, who was standing near him, and who promptly returned: "If that is all that bothers you, my brother, say the word and I will relieve you of that task." The Grand Duke who volunteered so glibly to take his brother's place, with all his responsibilities, was then only in his twentieth year.

Artesian Wells in New York.

New York Scientific American.

The number of artesian wells in this city steadily and rapidly increases, something like forty having been sunk during the past year. Their depths range from 200 to 2,000 feet, and now the flow ranges from 1,000 to 2,000 barrels a day. These wells are used, mainly by brewers and other large manufacturers who require a large amount of water, and who find the artesian well water economical both from its cheapness and its coolness, which enables them to dispense with much ice. Usually the wells are vertical. In one instance seven holes were driven in opposite directions and at different angles, only one being vertical. The boring was carried to a depth of about 260 feet on the average, the largest at an angle being 457 feet deep. Water was struck in all the borings and an abundant supply has been obtained copiously.
